

Bavarian Mountain Hound Breed Notes

Dog World published 19/07/09

It has been a quiet time for Bavarian Mountain Hounds over the last few weeks, the calm before the storm. The breeds' next outing will be the CLA Game Fair at Belvoir Castle in Lincolnshire on the 24th, 25th and 26th July. Last year was very hard work and extremely hot, but we met a lot of the Society's members and their dogs which made the whole experience very enjoyable. It is so good to put names to faces and to see the dogs in the flesh and not just in photos.

On the 1st of August is the Hound Association Championship Show, Bingley Hall, Stafford. The Import classes will now be judged by Mr C K Thornton and the entries are 17:14. The rings will be outside, unless the weather changes, so fingers crossed it stays dry.

The first litter of pups from hip scored parents have now gone to their new homes and have settled in well. In true Bavarian style it is as if they have always been there.

A few weeks ago an eleventh month old Bavarian male was looking for a new home. Luckily he was rehomed quickly and with someone who works their dogs and understands the needs of this breed. This lad would not have been in an uncertain position if his breeder had been notified at the start. As soon as they found he needed help phone calls were made and he was "rescued".

Should you want to know more about the breed all the contact details are on the Societies' web site – www.bavarianmountainhoundsociety.org.uk
